Lifetime Movie Network is embarking on "Deadly Honeymoon," greenlighting an original movie starring "Terminator: The Sarah Connor Chronicles" alumna Summer Glau.

Chris Carmack ("Drop Dead Diva") and Zoe McLellan ("Dirty Sexy Money") co-star in the film inspired by the real-life mysterious disappearance of groom George Allen Smith.

"Deadly Honeymoon" follows two young newlyweds, Lindsey (Glau) and Trevor Forrest (Carmack), as they embark on their 10-day honeymoon cruise. But the dream vacation devolves into a night of wild partying, infidelity and strange encounters with a group of Eastern European passengers, and the next morning, Trevor is missing, presumed to have fallen overboard to his death. However, one investigator (McLellan) begins to question if his death really was an accident.

Paul Shapiro is directing from a script by Ron McGee Michael Jacobs, Fernando Szew, Ricardo Galindez and Roy Trice are executive producing. Filming is slated to begin in October for a 2010 premiere.

Glau, who recently joined Fox's "Dollhouse," is repped by WME. McLellan is with Domain.
